INGREDIENTS

800 g	Squash, peeled and diced
½	Onion
no quantity given	Goat cheese (log)
3	Garlic cloves
no quantity given	Leek
1	Grated tomato (optional)
1 bunch (or 1 tsp dried)	Fresh thyme
1 pinch	Oregano
1 pinch	Ground cinnamon (or cumin)
no quantity given	Extra virgin olive oil, salt, pepper

METHOD

1. Cook the diced squash with the thyme, oregano and cinnamon, pouring in a little water and keeping the pan covered, until tender. Check the salt and cool.
2. Chop the onion, garlic and leek and sweat them in a little olive oil until soft and translucent.
3. Mix squash and onion, and cool completely.
4. Roll out the base, spread the filling and crumble the goat cheese over the top.
5. Cover, seal with a repulgo, cut a central hole and brush with egg.
6. Bake at 180 °C for about 30 min until golden. Let it cool to warm before cutting.

NOTES

An autumnal sweet-savoury contrast: sweet squash and onion against the sharp, assertive goat cheese.
The cinnamon is the differentiating touch, and it comes straight from the source. A pinch is enough.
The squash cooks in a covered pan with a splash of water, which is how the source softens it.
Add the goat cheese in pieces at assembly so it melts in veins.
Works just as well cold as hot, which makes it good for taking out.
Fully vegetarian. For a vegan version, drop the cheese and skip the egg glaze.
The source names the goat cheese only at assembly and gives no amount for it, and no amount for the leek either. The cumin alternative is not in the original.
