PATE SABLEE WITH ALMOND FLOUR

YIELD	ACTIVE TIME	REST	OVEN
8 mini tartlets at 8 cm, or 1 large 23 cm tart	30 min	1 h 15 min	320F / 160C, 20 min in the rings, then 5 to 10 min more out of them

INGREDIENTS

230 g	Pastry flour, or all-purpose
90 g	Powdered sugar
30 g	Almond flour
110 g	Unsalted butter, 82% fat, very cold
50 g	Egg, room temperature
a pinch	Salt

METHOD

1. Freeze the butter chunks 10 to 15 minutes first.
2. Sift the flour, powdered sugar, almond flour and salt together.
3. Rub the very cold butter in until sandy, working fast, no more than a few minutes.
4. Add the room-temperature egg and bring it together by hand. It looks crumbly at first, so resist adding liquid.
5. Wrap and chill.
6. Line the perforated tart rings with the dough and freeze them an hour, heating the oven to 320F / 160C towards the end of that hour.
7. Bake 20 minutes, lift the rings away, then bake 5 to 10 minutes more until golden brown.

NOTES

Almond flour is the difference from the Ferrandi version, and it makes a more tender, less snappy shell.
Pastry flour preferred for the lower protein, all-purpose works.
Scaled for tartlets as well as one large tart, so it is the one to use for small formats.
Baked shells keep several days at room temperature. The raw dough freezes for 3 months, far longer than the other two.
