CROQUETAS DE MARISA SÁNCHEZ, ECHAURREN

YIELD	ACTIVE TIME	REST
~30 croquetas	40 min	Overnight

INGREDIENTS

1 l	Whole milk, very hot
90 g	Flour
80 g	Butter
50 g	Chopped onion
10 g	Olive oil
50 g	Diced chicken breast
30 g	Jamón serrano, chopped
40 g	Meat stock (or a stock cube)
2	Hard-boiled eggs, chopped very fine
250 g	Breadcrumbs
2-3	Beaten eggs
to taste	Salt
quantity not given	Oil for frying

METHOD

1. Melt the butter and cook the jamón in it. Separately sweat the chicken with the onion in the olive oil, blitz, and combine with the buttered jamón.
2. Add the flour and cook the roux properly so it does not taste raw.
3. Pour in the very hot milk a little at a time, stirring. Add the stock and cook to a creamy mass.
4. Correct the salt and fold in the very finely chopped hard-boiled egg.
5. Spread out, cover to the surface, chill.
6. Shape, coat breadcrumb, egg, breadcrumb, and fry in very hot oil until golden.

NOTES

Roux is 90 g flour : 80 g butter : 1 l milk, so slightly flour-heavy rather than a true 1:1.
Marisa Sánchez's 1957 recipe, Premio Nacional de Gastronomía, later taken on by her son Francis Paniego.
Very hot milk onto the roux avoids lumps and gives a finer bechamel.
The very finely chopped hard-boiled egg is the signature of this version.
Double coating (breadcrumb, egg, breadcrumb) gives a crust that does not split in the fryer.
Chill completely before rolling.
Echaurren, Ezcaray, two Michelin stars.
Header calls for very hot oil.
